Free movement of capital: the NBM explains in a new video the benefits of integration into the European financial market

The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) is launching today a new explanatory video dedicated to the free movement of capital, a key chapter in the negotiations on the Republic of Moldova's accession to the European Union, coordinated by the central bank.

The video presents in a clear and accessible manner how Moldova's integration into the European financial system is transforming people's experience of financial services: faster, cheaper and safer international transfers, wider access to financial services in the EU and real financial freedom, whether you are working abroad, have relatives in another country, or run a business.

"The free movement of capital, goods and services, and labour are three important pillars of the European single market - essential elements for the financial integration of the Republic of Moldova. By harmonizing legislation and modernizing financial infrastructure, the National Bank is creating the necessary conditions for citizens and businesses to benefit from faster transfers, lower costs, and wider access to financial services within the European area. We are openly communicating this progress so that people can concretely understand how European integration brings more financial freedom, predictability, and security in their daily lives", emphasizes the Governor of the NBM, Anca Dragu.

This initiative is part of the ongoing efforts of the National Bank of Moldova to support the European path of the Republic of Moldova by strengthening financial stability, modernizing the banking sector and aligning the regulatory framework with EU standards.

As the authority coordinating three important negotiating chapters: free movement of capital; financial services; and economic and monetary policy, the NBM actively contributes to transforming the national financial system into one aligned with the requirements of the European single market, bringing concrete benefits to the economy, the business environment, and every citizen.
