NBM is becoming increasingly attractive to young people: Over 20 students from the academic diaspora have recently completed internships

The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) is becoming, year after year, an increasingly attractive institution for young people who want to contribute to strengthening the financial system of the Republic of Moldova. Recently, 22 students originally from the Republic of Moldova, studying at prestigious universities around the world, including in the United Kingdom, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Austria, France, Switzerland, Luxembourg, Romania, and other countries, chose to complete internships at the NBM.

The young people were involved in the work of several subdivisions of the central bank, gaining experience in areas such as monetary policy, financial stability, banking supervision, international relations and European integration, budget and accounting, information technologies, and more.

In this context, the Governor of the NBM, Anca Dragu, had an open dialogue with the interns, encouraging them to believe in their potential and to pursue their professional path with confidence and responsibility: "The NBM is the place where your knowledge and ideas can take root. We look forward to your return not only as interns, but also as future colleagues who will contribute to the development of a strong and stable economy in the Republic of Moldova." The Governor also reaffirmed that the institution is deeply anchored in the values of professional training and invests in young generations. The NBM thus becomes an open, modern and future-oriented space where young people can harness their potential and build relevant careers at home.

“NBM is investing in the future. We are proud to become a point of attraction for Moldovan students who are studying at some of the world’s top universities. Through relevant internships and hands-on experience, we offer them the opportunity to contribute to the development of Moldova, wherever they are,” emphasized the Governor.
In turn, the young participants shared their experiences at the NBM, expressing appreciation for the professionalism of the teams, the friendly environment, and the openness of their colleagues. They mentioned that the internship far exceeded their expectations both professionally and personally.

"This experience gave us a practical perspective on the functioning of a modern central bank and strengthened the connection to our home country," the interns highlighted. The National Bank of Moldova actively encourages the involvement of young people in the country’s economic life and reaffirms its openness to the next generation of professionals. Since the beginning of the year, over 50 students from the academic diaspora have completed an internship at the NBM as part of the NBM NextGen project.

Detailed information on the conditions and application procedures is available on the official website of the NBM: Internships at the National Bank of Moldova [1].
