The NBM launches a new digital service: Information on the official exchange rate of MDL signed electronically

The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) is launching a digital service that provides information on the official exchange rate in digital format [1] – a modern tool that simplifies access for individuals and legal entities to publicly available information about the official exchange rate of MDL, set by the NBM in relation to foreign currencies.

Information, which was previously provided in written format and upon request to the central bank, is now accessible through a fully automated digital flow. The service generates real-time authentic data on the official exchange rates set by the NBM, based on criteria entered by the user: calculation methodology (daily rate, average monthly rate, average annual rate), period, and selected foreign currencies.

“This digital service complements the innovative technological solutions we are developing to meet the everyday needs of citizens. The digitalisation of financial services remains a priority for the NBM. We are investing in solutions that can be fully accessed online, from a phone or computer, keeping pace with technological progress while ensuring people’s time, safety, and comfort,” emphasised the NBM Governor, Ms. Anca Dragu.

The information is available in Romanian and English, includes a QR code for validity verification, and is authenticated by a qualified electronic signature, ensuring the authenticity of the provided data. It is requested when necessary, such as for financial reporting, foreign exchange transactions, or other procedures requiring confirmation of official exchange rates.

The launch of this service complements a series of digitalisation and institutional modernisation initiatives by the NBM, aimed at streamlining internal processes and improving the user experience.

The service can be accessed at the following address: https://bnm.md/informatie-curs-oficial/ [1].
